

Tips on going to the Down South Drive-in Cinema

There are probably a good number of people out there who have never been to a drive-in theater. We've decided to create this little section to help those who are planning to make their first trip to the drive-in theater.

Window cleaner and a roll of paper towels. Well, this is Down South and bugs are bound to splatter against your windshield on the way to the theater. I doubt that you want to watch movies through those bugs that ran into your windshield at 60 miles an hour. They're really messy.

Blankets: Yep, it might be warm Down South, but it can get cool at night. You probably don't want to run your car for the hours that you're sitting watching movies.

Bug spray: Because they ALL didn't die against your windshield on the way there, their bound to pester you while you are there watching movies. Most will leave you alone, but those bloodthirsty mosquitoes just won't go away.

Lawn chairs: Maybe you don't want to sit in the car, but instead in front of the lawn. We've setup some chairs for you overthere. If all seats have been taken you'd better stay inside your vehicle.

Car radio. Switch it on and tune to the FM frequency which will be advertised on screen. If you don't have car audio, or you came on foot or by bike we are able to provide wireless headphones for no extra charge.

Jumper cables. Some people either have weak car batteries or they turn the ignition to the wrong position. Keep the cables along in case your battery goes dead, or maybe someone else's does and they need some help.

When you enter the drive-in theater, turn your lights off. If you get there after the movie starts, your headlights shining on the screen are very annoying.

Avoid hitting your brake pedal when you are parked at the theater. Brake lights are very bright and can annoy those who are parked behind you.

If you drive a large vehicle, don't park in the front rows. Vans, SUV's, and trucks can obstruct the view of people farther back. Follow the directions of the Drive In Cinema Staff members at all times.

Do not shine flashlights or laser pointers on the screen while the movies are playing. This annoys people and can get you thrown out of the theater.

Don't leave the terrain during the movie show. This can be very dangerous because it is dark in the theater grounds and there are bound to be people walking around.

DO NOT DRINK AND DRIVE!!

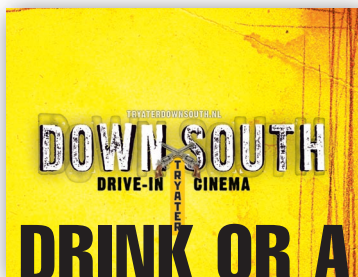

Don't leave a mess when you leave. Just like the indoor theaters, take your junk to the trashcans around the theater or take it home with you and dump it out there.

When you enter, move around in, or leave the drive-in theater, keep your speed down. There will be plenty of people moving around on foot and you don't want to run anyone over.

If you have parked in the front row, do NOT drive forward across that part of the drive-in to leave. Many visitors of the drive-in like to lay in the grass in front of the screen and you may not see them when leaving.

Follow the directions given to you by the Drive In Cinema Staff members at all times.

When you enter the drive-in theater, turn your lights off. If you get there after the movie starts, your headlights shining on the screen are very annoying.

Following these items and rules will make for a safe and fun visit to the drive-in theater for everyone to enjoy!
